The second section, on the sense of call to social work that many Christians feel, features what might be the highlight of the book: an excerpt from the book Social Work as Calling by the late Donna Garland, a stalwart progenitor and inspiration to the editors and many other social work professionals. Garland wrote, "We walk our calling all our lives, with all the ups and downs and twists and turns, never finished until we finish this life" (as cited on page 105).
